

Music Gateway Announce £300K Christmas Give-away

The festive period is well and truly underway and Music Gateway have thrown their hat into the ring by announcing a mass give-away to their members worth over £300,000 to use over the Christmas season up until the 31st January 2016.

The unique online business platform is designed to connect music and creative professionals around the globe. They have offered each of their members a monetary gift to support their projects and ideas conducted through the site for the upcoming new year and is designed to stimulate creativity through the support of the platform. The campaign is being run as a way of the company showing their gratitude for their loyal member support. Music Gateway recognises that it wouldn't be what it is now without the support of its founding members over the past 2 and a half years since launch.

CEO & Founder, Jon Skinner says; 'It's been huge year for us and a great sign of things to come. We've been working hard all year round to improve, develop and perfect the platform, and it's down to our members and their feedback that we're able to do exactly that. The fact they recognise our long term goal in making their life easier and helping them generate work is testament to their support. It's important that we thank them and this goes some way to showing our appreciation.'

It's been a successful year for Music Gateway, starting with the launch of the Private Network, with founding clients involving, SKY (SATV), Notting Hill Music Publishing and Universal Production Music, and ending 2015 with many new innovative changes.

Music Gateway have made a point of listening to their core members to further improve on an already successful platform and the progression from this is clearly shown.

The festive gift is for all members to take advantage of. The funds can be used towards budgets, featuring their projects, connection fees to other professionals for co-writes and collaborations and enabling free members to upgrade to the pro subscription for a month.

Music Gateway aims to inspire and reward its pro-active members with support running into the new year and beyond.
