

New £50K Project Support Aids Indie Professionals

Following the success of Music Gateway's £25K fund last year, it's onwards and upwards as the company announce the launch of a new, larger £50K Project Support Fund, aimed at their members to help with recordings, releases and marketing.

The launch comes off the back of their £300,000 giveaway to members over the recent festive season and is available to support budgeted projects that members post through the business platform. The fund solidifies the work they do with trade organisations across the sectors to ensure fair pay and treatment for professionals and their services. Their most recent venture see them become a Friend of AIM. Other organisations are also working with the platform, including BPI, PRS, PPL, MPA, PMA, BASCA and The Guild of Music Supervisors.

'It's simple. It's rewarding our members for their support, a give back of sorts. The fund is specifically designed to reward the loyalty our members have shown us since our birth. Like most software, sometimes people need a little incentive to change their behavior and give it a try, we don't just want people pitching for work, we want our members to experience the benefits in posting projects too. As we know, change can be a big barrier and this encourages the core use of the our platform and ensures fair pay for all, long may it continue.'

Here's how you get involved: The fund is to support registered members of the site, so you can jump on board here. The way the fund works is simple, it's a case of contacting a member of the Music Gateway team via their landing page.

Once you outline your project, which can be anything from recording music, promotions, PR, music videos and more, Music Gateway will review and agree to contribute up to 15% of your budget on completion through the site.

Press & PR: Besides the contribution towards your budget, Music Gateway are offering PR and Press support through their channels, further enhancing your project and any release exposure. The whole proposal is flexible, which makes sense, as every person's needs and goals are different.

New Site Design: Their new website design was recently launched, revealing a cleaner, crisper and more precise feel for the company. They have also introduced a new business tier to their accounts aimed at larger volume use companies. It's already been a success with many converting to the new tier. All this combined with the much-anticipated Playlist Feature launch, show just how busy the guys over at Music Gateway have been.
