

Music Gateway Joint Venture Creates An Abundance Of Opportunities From Asia

An exciting partnership has been announced between global music platform, Music Gateway and Korean label, digital distributor and publisher, KDigital Media. The experience within the industry of these companies has created a rich partnership with a wealth of knowledge, connections, and opportunities, not just for the companies themselves but also for all users of Music Gateway and established contacts of KDigital.

KDigital is one of the most experienced music industry operators within the Asian market with numerous staff and offices across Asia. They are committed to serving both independent and major music companies and match Music Gateway's ethos of assisting the careers of talented people.

With a combined 30-years worth of experience in the entertainment and music business, respective CEO's Charlie Ahn and Jon Skinner saw a cohesive opportunity in working together following several meetings over recent years.

"I love what Music Gateway are all about, it's really refreshing to work with a company where our goals are aligned. We see this as win-win, good for our Asian partners and a great way of tapping into MG's constantly growing plethora of talented users."

This new partnership is an exciting development for Music Gateway, as although individual companies from locations such as Hong Kong, Singapore and Japan are regularly using the platform, the benefit of having an established and proactive company on the ground in Asia will further enhance their reputation as the 'go to' place for opportunity and talent.

The success of the partnership is already evident through the completion of a project late last year for Little Tokyo, one of the platform's many fantastic producers, collaborating with Jun Young Choi, an experienced veteran producer from South Korea. The project, now complete, is set to be the new single at the end of February for a hot female artist "Anda" from Emperor Entertainment Group Korea.

This is just the start of what will be a windfall of projects delivered through Music Gateway's unique business platform.
